Deutsche Bank is a pioneer in RMB internationalisation both onshore and around the world. It has always been highly committed to the development of the RMB through all facets of foreign exchange, capital markets, credit trading and transaction banking. It was the first to allow electronic execution via its online trading platform, Autobahn FX, and was the first to launch an investable and non-bank proprietary offshore RMB bond index. Deutsche Bank China was an early mover in executing onshore RMB FX option trades, as well as in offering innovative cross-border RMB services. It was also selected as one of the first China International Payment System (CIPS) participants.

Zhong De Securities Company Limited, a joint venture between Deutsche Bank and Shanxi Securities Co. Ltd., is an active underwriter and sponsor of stocks and bonds (including A-shares, foreign investment shares, government bonds, and corporate bonds), as well as provider of corporate advisory services in the domestic capital market. Deutsche Bank holds a 33.3% ownership in the joint venture.

In addition, the Bank has a well-established sales and trading platform, which covers fixed income, credit, foreign exchange and derivatives.

Furthering its commitment to its asset management business in China, Deutsche Bank holds a 30% strategic investment in Harvest Funds Management – one of the country's leading investment managers.

Deutsche Bank China's Wealth Management business provides financial advisory services to high net worth individuals through the Shanghai branch, where private clients enjoy access to the bank's global resources and investment expertise.

As a leading market participant, Deutsche Bank China has worked closely with regulators in introducing new financial market instruments, and is widely recognised for its innovations. It is increasingly well-positioned to assist Chinese companies in their offshore expansion through its capabilities in the financial markets, advisory services, trade facilitation, FX, hedging and all other corporate banking services globally.
